MVCTC Welcomes Students for 2010-2011 School Year

Clayton, Ohio -- The Miami Valley Career Technology Center (MVCTC) began their 39th year of classes on Wednesday, August 18, 2010. MVCTC Superintendent Dr. John Boggess, staff, and Student Ambassadors greeted close to 1,900 junior and senior students enrolled for the 2010-2011 school year.

MVCTC is preparing our region's 21st century workforce. For high school students from 27 partner school districts and adult learners from five counties, MVCTC is the place to be.

This year MVCTC is excited to continue the tradition of ensuring students are college and career ready, by offering early college connections with Clark State Community College, Miami University Middletown, The Ohio State University Agricultural Technical Institute, Sinclair Community College, and Wright State University. MVCTC students now have even more options to earn college credit while still in high school, making a college degree even more affordable and attainable.
